Baboon Job Mat

This activity goes perfect with your animal lesson in science. I paired this activity with my son's science lesson talking about what jobs animals do in their families. I do suggest that you talk about baboons and what jobs they do in their families before doing this activity. In the science lesson that I did with my son, it talked specifically about baboons. You can easily find information on Baboons online.

Have your kiddo cut out the pictures of the baboons, make sure to cut out the word female and male with the picture. Have them sort them by what jobs they do. Some jobs are done by both the male and female.

You can laminate the whole set and reuse several times, or you can make it a one-time activity and glue the baboons on, the choice is yours.

I included an answer key at the end of this packet for your reference.
